

International Mail Crossing the Italian Peninsula 1815-1852

The exhibition collection shows the letter mail, the postal rates and routes as well as the conventions and markings of foreign countries transiting the Roman States in the period from the Congress of Vienna (1815) when Europe was re-organized after the Napoleonic Wars, to the introduction of the postage stamps in Rome (1852). Subsequently the letter mail in the Roman States changed and new conventions modified also international relations and the mail system. It is mainly mail from and to the South of Italy, Ionian Islands and Malta that followed the route of Rome.

| 1164 | 1197 (May 18): Vigonza (Padua), Notary document on vellum (229x123 mm), a fine script of grant a land, showing notary sign at bottom left. The notary public drew up and notarized the deed: "... presente conscentiente filio suo Widone, Viviani fillium presbyter..." who paid the Notary's copy of the deed and also the cost of the delivery. In the XII century Notaries were named notarii regii, (appointed by the Emperor) and they made the contracts from diff. parties. A courier, usually a notary's servant, delivered the documents to the party involved. Fine early document with transscription by Dr.ssa L. Piccinini attached.
