- 6045 1843 (March 9): Entire letter from Constantinople to Gemlik on the Sea of Marmara with an exceptional fine strike of the circular "D.D.S.G. / CONSTANTINOPLE / P.P." in greenish blue (Tchilinghirian fig. 441). This postmark is mostly found blurred, this example being unusually well struck.
Note: In 1829, the Donau-Dampfschiffahrts-Gesellschaft (DDSG) was founded. It supplied postal services on the Danube as well as on the Black and Aegean Sea. In 1845, the DDSG services were restricted to the Danube and Odessa. (Photo = ☐ 29)

6046 1844 (Sept 28): Entire letter from Braila to Constantinople struck with circular "D.D.S.G. / IBRAILA / P.P." in black (Tchilinghirian fig. 802). An exceptional strike of this rare handstamp on cover from the well-known Zafropulo correspondence, light horizontal file fold, but an elusive usage.

Note: Tchilinghirian & Stephens mention that this handstamp was probably manufactured in Constantinople for fully prepaid covers with markings existing only for the offices in Constantinople, Galatz, Ibraila and Varna, starting in August 1844. The Lloyd Agency and Consular Office only opened in September 1845 and took over the deep water services from the DDSG which restricted its services to the Danube and the route to Odessa. This postmark can be found up to 1865, even as an obliterator on DDSG adhesives.

| 1868 (March 14): Unpaid Entire letter written by the DDSG agency in Giurgevo and sent to Bucharest with a clear strike of the rare framed "D.D.S.G. / AGENTIE / GIURGEVO" in blue (Tchilinghirian fig. 799). The entire was despatched at the Romanian P.O. with fair wreathed "GIURGIU 14 / 3" cds in black on obverse (Kiriac fig. 396). Reverse shows fair "BUCURESCI DIMINEATA" arrival cds (Kiriac fig. 430). Strong horizontal filing fold through the despatch datestamp not distracting from this very interesting cover.
Note: This rectangular Giurgevo marking seemed to have the function of a firm handstamp indicating the sender as already suggested by Hurt & Kelly (1950) on p. 45. Tchilinghirian & Stephen stated in 1966, that its actual status remained uncertain. However the present entire written at the DDSG Agency itself as well as other covers from the literature suggest that this handstamp's function may have simply been to indicate the sender. Interestingly this cover was not given from the DDSG agency to the consular P.O. but to the Romanian P.O.

6426 1866 (May 31): Group of two letter fronts from the same correspondence, sent insured with values of 2'000 lire and 3'000 lire from Barletta to Napoli on the same day, bearing a combination of 1863 DLR 10 c. ochre-yellow, 30 c. brown (single, pair & strip of three) and a pair of 40 c. rose-carmine on one front; and 30 c. brown with 40 c. rose carmine (three single adhesives, a horizontal strip of three and a strip of four; one stamp with file fold) on the other front, resulting in total frankings of 270 c. and 430 c., respectively. The adhesives were tied by BARLETTA cds's to the letters, each with ASSICURATA handstamp alongside. These fronts present the largest known frankings of the 30 centesimi and the 40 centesimi with date postmarks, an impressive and most interesting duo. Certs. Sorani (1996), Serra (2005), Zanaria (2005).

Note: Both letters were sent separately from the same sender to the same receiver at the same day, as the maximum value which could be insured at that time was only 3'000 lire. The frankings are correct with twice 20 c. for the postage of a 18 gr. cover, 30 c. registration fee and 20 times 20 c. insurance fee for the insured value of 2'000 lire of the first letter, in total 270 centesimi. For the second letter the total fee was five times 20 c. for the postage of a 43 gr. cover, 30 c. registration fee and 30 times 20 c. insurance fee for the insured value of 3'000 lire, in total 430 centesimi.
