Great Britain Surface Printed Issues 1855-1901

The Hans Blom Collection

The Surface Printed Issues of Great Britain during the reign of Queen Victoria were designed, engraved and printed by Thomas De La Rue and Company under the supervision and instruction of the Inland Revenue. The decision to replace embossing by surface printing for postage stamps was made in January 1855. The Board of Inland Revenue (not the printers De La Rue!) paid Jean Ferdinand Joubert de la Ferte 100 guineas for engraving the Queen's head to be used for the surface printed stamps. The engraving was based upon a drawing by Henry Corbould and can be regarded as an exceptional artwork 'en miniature'.

Initially starting in 1855 with the 4d., 6d. and 1s. stamp designs without 'Corner Letters', the decision was taken to implement small white letters in all four corners in 1862, altered to larger white corner letters in 1864.

The engraving of corner letters and plate numbers onto a Surface printing plate of 240 stamps took over four weeks. The use of plugs, inserted into holes machined through the die, speeded up printing plate production in 1873, but resulted in the corner letters being printed in colour instead of white

From 1887 on, with the advent of the Jubilee Issue, the system of Corner letters was abandoned.

Premises of De La Rue

The Hans Blom collection shows the changes of designs, papers and colours of the De La Rue Surface Printed Issues as well as their postal use: with choice cancellations and usages on cover.

A few imperfections but very rare. Note: Letters to newly occupied Paris had to be sent 'open' (unsealed) between February 6 and February 16, 1871.
